John F. Kennedy: The Commemorative Video Album; 110 mins.; CBS/Fox Video; $19.95.

Of all the productions about John F. Kennedy on the 25th anniversary of the year of his assassination, this one is the bottom of the barrel — at least it is difficult to conceive of one being worse than this.

Divided into three parts, it begins with the presidential years and hits the highlights of his administration, presented almost entirely with excerpts from his speeches and press conferences. The final segment is a predictable and rather bland interview with Rose Kennedy that appears to have been colorized. CBS News should be ashamed of itself for producing and releasing this video.
